- A. Events can be wired to IBM API cooperative portlets.
- B. Events can be wired to JSR 168 cooperative portlets.
- C. Events cannot be used in tandem with public render parameters.

Correct Answer: B

Interoperability between JSR 286 portlet events and JSR 168 cooperative portlets By concept, cooperative portlets are similar to JSR 286 portlet events. Both concepts describe publish/subscribe communication patterns that are based on typed information that is published and received by portlets and propagated via communication links.

Because the concepts are quite similar, the portal supports data exchange between JSR 168 cooperative portlets and JSR 286 portlets that support events. This means that you can extend an existing setup using JSR 168 cooperative portlets with new JSR 286 portlets and that you can smoothly migrate individual cooperative portlets to the new API without losing communication possibilities.
